Current Issues in Economic Integration

Can Asia Inspire the "West"?

Edited by Bernadette Andreosso-O'Callaghan, University of Limerick, Ireland and M. Bruna Zolin, University of Ca' Foscari, Italy

'In the wake of the current global financial crisis this multidisciplinary study examines growing Asian economic integration fuelled increasingly by intra-regional trade and investment and contrasting with the institutional mechanism led EU. Chapters highlight the paramountcy of China, the source of a potential reserve currency replacing the US dollar. This book will prove an invaluable reference source for policymakers, scholars and business practitioners alike.' – Robert Taylor, University of Sheffield, UK

This book addresses questions raised within the field of integration by the current economic crisis. Amongst the issues considered are the viability of decoupling between multinational firms and the banking system, the US dollar-centred monetary system and the continuation of the US dollar as the unique reserved currency, the long term viability of US-China economic relations, and the future role that Asia could play vis-à-vis the West.
